

COAT OF TAR FOR ELOPING PASTOR

Hundreds of the Angry Residents Threaten Rev. Mr. De Cordova with Violence if He Dare Return to Town.

GIRL WITH WHOM HE ELOPED IS PROSTRATED.

"I Will Try to Live Down the Disgrace," She Sobs—Father Forgives Her, but Would Punish Preacher.

"I realize that I have made a terrible mistake and I am going to do everything in my power to live it down."

This statement was made to an Evening World reporter to-day by Miss Julia Brown, of South River, the belle of the town, who was lured from her home by the Rev. J. F. Cordova, a clergyman and a married man, travelled about the country with him and was discarded finally when he decided to return to his wife.

The Rev. Mr. Cordova has not returned to his home in South River, and it is not probable that he will, as 3,500 villagers have arranged to tar and feather him and ride him on a rail the minute he appears in the neighborhood.

A committee of women was organized to-day to arrange for the reception of the clergyman should he come back to South River. The committee got right to work by taking up a collection for the purpose of laying in an ample stock of tar and feathers.

Miss Brown returned to her home Saturday night with her father. He met her in the Hotel St. Denis, where a relative of the Rev. Mr. Cordova brought her. The minister joined his wife in Brooklyn, after announcing to the young girl he decided that he had made a terrible mistake and wished to return to his wife.

Father Would Crush Preacher.
Conover Brown, the girl's father, is a blacksmith. An Evening World reporter called on him while he was at work in his forge at South River. He is a typical blacksmith, of splendid physique and was wielding a great hammer when the reporter entered his shop.

When asked how he would treat the preacher who deceived his daughter he replied by laying a horsehoe on the anvil and then, with a mighty swing, crushing it in a single blow of the hammer.

"That's how I would treat that man," said Mr. Brown, "and that is how every man in this section feels toward him. I have brought my child back to our home and she will try to live this down. It will be a terrible task for her, and I do not feel sure that she will be able to withstand the strain. Of course, she will be put out of the church where she sang so long in the choir, and the women will have nothing to do with her. That will be her punishment, and I hope she will be able to carry the burden of her disgrace."

If she breaks down I will have to move away and begin—life over again in some new community.

Pastor Always Wrote Wife.

The most remarkable feature of my daughter's elopement is the fact that that minister was in constant communication with his wife all the time he was touring the country with my daughter. His wife replied to his letters, and finally wrote that any time he decided to leave Julia and come back to her she would welcome him with open arms.

"When he got this letter he told my girl that he had made a terrible mistake, and he still loved his wife and wished to return to her. They travelled together in Canada and Mexico, and whatever they went they registered as brother and sister."

It was reported that he ill-treated my daughter and visited actions and words. Such was not the case. He was always gentle in his treatment of her and she did not leave him until he made up his mind to go back to his wife.

"Then he brought my daughter to Brooklyn, where he called upon his brother-in-law, Harry Dudley, a letter-carrier, of No. 12 or No. 13 Berkeley place. He telephoned to his wife and she said she was ready to welcome him back to her arms."

Preacher Not Likely to Return.

"My daughter and Mr. Dudley wrote to me and arranged to have him meet me in the Hotel St. Denis, in New York. Then Dudley called on me and told me to come and get my daughter. I am not sure where that minister is now, but I believe he is stopping with his wife's brother, Mr. Emery, of Oceanic, N. J. It is my confident belief that he will never set foot in South River again. If he does she will go out of town riding on a rail and coated with tar and feathers."

Before her elopement Miss Brown worked in a big handkerchief factory in South River. She handled young men and girls are employed in this establishment and they are making separate preparations to receive the minister in the event of his return to the neighborhood.

Miss Brown was exceedingly well liked by her fellow-employees and they feel her disgrace keenly. Many of the young men in the factory declare that if the Rev. Mr. Cordova comes home he will not only leave South River riding on a rail, but will make a target for a number of skillful young marksmen.

The Brown home in South River was darkened like a house of mourning when the porter called here to-day. The girl is still in a state bordering on nervous collapse, and her mother would allow her to speak only one sentence, stating that she tears apart from her eyes, that she would devote her whole life to living down her disgrace.

MISSING HEIRESS CLAIMS ESTATES

After Two Years' Search Mrs. William Hollinger Is Found in Colorado—Her Husband and Father Left Property.

Miss Augusta Terrill, formerly of Tremont, has been found at Colorado Springs after a two years' search on the part of relatives, and will return in a few days to claim her portion of the estate left by her father. She also will claim all of an estate to which her husband, William Hollinger, became heir after their departure from New York. The husband died two weeks ago from tuberculosis.

It was against the wishes of her parents that Miss Terrill married Hollinger two years ago. He was suffering even then from tuberculosis and the physicians gave him only a few months to live. After their marriage they went to Colorado Springs, leaving no word where they had gone.

Some time later Mrs. Hollinger's father died, leaving to her a considerable share in his estate. News had never reached her husband before his death of an estate to which he had fallen heir.

Mrs. Hollinger was accidentally found by a friend a few days ago and notified of the two estates awaiting her.

KILLS HIS BEST FRIEND.
Joseph Mercurio Stabs Dominique Reggino.

Dominique Reggino, of No. 152 Lincoln avenue, was found dying from a stab wound in the stomach on the Willis Avenue Bridge by policemen last night. He was sent to the Lebanon Hospital, where he died an hour later, after telling the police that Joseph Mercurio, of One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street and Lincoln avenue, his rival for the hand of a woman, had stabbed him.

The two men were bosom friends, and went to the celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, in Little Italy, last night. They separated, and Reggino was crossing the bridge when the enraged Mercurio followed and caught him.

Before Reggino could make an outcry he had been fatally stabbed. Mercurio escaped, and the police are looking for him.
